"A recognized and respected leader in the health care sector, Joanne will bring valuable strategic counsel to our board. Her depth of knowledge and leadership gained by managing the large-scale finances and logistics of Kimberly-Clark Health Care brands will be a strong addition to our advisory infrastructure," said Randy Lipps, Omnicell president, chairman and CEO. "Joanne's extensive experience and acumen with lean management principles, mergers and acquisitions, and in navigating the health care industry's regulatory process will also complement the experience of our current directors."

Ms. Bauer leads multispecialty businesses across the pain management, respiratory, digestive health and infection prevention sectors. She joined Kimberly-Clark in 1981 and has held various marketing and management positions within its adult care and health care businesses. She was elected president of Kimberly-Clark's global health care business in 2006, where she is responsible for a variety of surgical and infection prevention products and medical devices.

Ms. Bauer served on the board of directors for Medivance, Inc., a startup medical device company that was sold to BARD in October of 2011. She currently serves on the executive committee of the board of directors for MedShare, an Atlanta based non-profit organization, and the board of directors of AdvaMed—the Advanced Medical Technology Association.

"As our hospitals and health systems rely more on technology to improve efficiency and patient care, Omnicell offers the right approach and technologies to help these organizations achieve their goals," said Ms. Bauer. "I am honored to have the opportunity to contribute my insights and experiences to help guide such an important health care innovator as Omnicell."
